AWARD FOR CAMP #8

On March 25, 2013 Camp #8 received the "Community Partner Award" from Oshkosh Mayor Burk Tower during their annual State of the City meeting & Open House at the Oshkosh Convention Center, downtown Oshkosh, WI.

This recognition by the city of Oshkosh is designed in part to help Camp #8 build pride and awareness of what we do and stand for and we could not have done this without the fantastic members of our Camp. Photo by Kirby Scott.

Commander's Remarks

By Camp Commander Vince Barker

Greetings Brothers,

With the arrival of spring and warmer weather the active "season" for the SUVCW is upon us. Our camp and department have several important events coming up soon beginning with the King Home Open House on May 19th and culminating with the Department of Wisconsin hosting the SUVCW National Encampment in August. Memorial Day is of most immediate importance. Camp 8 has traditionally participated in the Oshkosh procession and ceremonies and the ceremonies at the King Veteran's Home. We need maximum participation from all brothers who are able to participate in these events. Remember as SUVCW members and descendants of the GAR, we swear an oath to honor Memorial Day, which as we all know began with General Logan's Order # 11 in 1868. Details on our Memorial Day activities are in this newsletter.

On April 13th, myself along with Camp 8 members Alan Petit, CSM Michael Boldon, and Kirby Scott, participated in the annual Lincoln Tomb Ceremony in Springfield, IL. This event is co-sponsored by the SUVCW and MOLLUS (Military Order of the Loyal Legion). I am proud to say that of the five brothers who were present from the Department of Wisconsin, four of us were from Camp 8! Huzzah! Alan presented a wreath on behalf of Camp 8 while I presented one on behalf of the Wisconsin Commandery, MOLLUS. As always it was a wonderful and moving ceremony and this year we were finally blessed with beautiful weather.

I hope to see you all on Memorial Day! In F, C, & L, Vince

Oshkosh ROTC Award.

On April 18, 2013 Old Abe Camp #8 Sr. Vice Commander Kirby Scott presented ROTC Cadet Jack Roets a certificate and medal from the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War at the Spring Awards Ceremony held at the Kolf Sports Center on the University of Wisconsin campus in Oshkosh, WI.

ATTENTION! Department Encampment Credentials

Notice. Anyone attending the Department Encampment on Jun. 15 will need a SUVCW Dept. Annual Encampment Credentials Card, by order of the Department Commander. As your camp secretary, I can provide these cards. I will give them out at the King Open House, May 19, the May 20 camp meeting, by mail on request, and at the Department Encampment in Boscobel, Jun. 15, prior to voting. This card is SUVCW Form 2a. The department has only just reestablished their use last year after several years of neglect. See you at the encampment.

Alan O. Petit, Secretary, Camp #8, Dept. of Wisc.

Lincoln's Birthplace

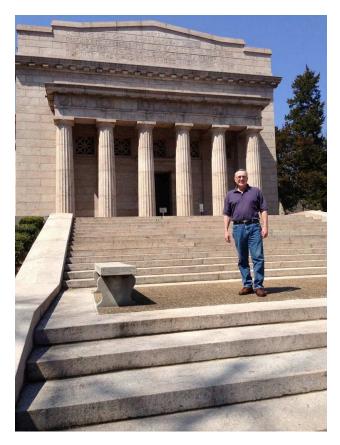

My wife, Susan, and I arrived at Lincoln's Birthplace on a beautiful Spring morning in early April. It was a pleasant break from the long Wisconsin winter . Lincoln's Birthplace is a National Historic Site and is located about 60 miles south of Louisville, Kentucky with easy access from Interstate 65. The area remains very rural with rolling hills, farms and wood lots. It reminded me of southwestern Wisconsin around Fort McCoy. The site is beautifully maintained by the National Park Service.

The log cabin in which Abraham Lincoln was born is enclosed by a marble building. Upon entering the building, the visitor is just a few feet from the log cabin which was disassembled and skillfully reassembled for preservation and display. The cabin is small and measures about 10 by 20 feet. It has a dirt floor, a window, a door and a fireplace. It is hard to imagine how a family lived in such small quarters.

The grounds are park-like and serene. The last witness tree died in 1976. There is a spring where the Lincoln family got water. A walking path is available for those visitors who wish to further explore the site and enjoy its natural beauty.

Sue and I enjoyed our visit and learned a lot about President Lincoln.

Much has been written about army chow during the Civil War. The quantity and quality certainly varied. With all due respect to veterans writing after the war and hard-core reenactors, the men survived on more than hard tack and coffee. Essentially there were two main rations – camp and marching. In general this is the diet in both daily rations:

The American diet, depending on region, consisted mostly of pork or beef, cornmeal or whole grains, Irish or sweet potatoes, and a limited variety of fruits. Americans had a propensity for meat and grease, according to theology historian Daniel Sack. Meat was very prominent in the American diet, with pork being the most popular. Beef came second and was more prominent in the North. Some of the most popular methods of preparing and serving meat included corning, stewing, boiling, frying, and baking in either butter or lard. Meat and grease, indeed

The army diet in many cases gave the men a greater variety of foods than did home. The army diet translates to a total calorie count of just under 4,000 in camp and just over 4,000 on the march. The recommended calorie level for active men of the same age today is about 2,600 –active men (as civil war soldier were in today's recommendation is about 3,500) Carbohydrate, protein, fat were all present in the Civil War diet in almost double the recommended amounts for today. Then why the number of deaths from food related causes.

The scanty diets and nutritional deficiencies suffered by the average soldier resulted from a number of determinants. Logistical difficulties, commissary neglect, and officer's ignorance denied many of their due rations. What food the men did receive was often of such poor quality as to make it inedible. A number of soldiers, lacking the basic culinary skills, ruined many a meal. However, even the full rations contained certain inherent nutritional deficiencies, and without knowledge of micronutrients by physicians and surgeons, the average soldier continued to suffer from its maladies.

http://scholar.lib.vt.edu/theses/available/etd-05262005-

2146/unrestricted/CivilWarDiet.pdf) that the problem was what is now described as "micro-nutrients" or those parts of food that allows the body to properly use the nutrients. Vitamin deficiencies caused problems, like night blindness from lack of Vitamin A; scurvy, diarrhea and dysentery from lack of Vitamin C. exacerbated by exposure to unsanitary conditions.

Another aspect of food in the Civil War was not necessarily the quantity, but the quality. Salt beef and salt pork were staples of the soldier's diet. Army suppliers did not have the best reputations for honest dealings. Individual armies tried as best as possible to supply fresh meat and employed cowboys to herd cattle behind the armies. There was more success in this endeavor in the west than the east.

Life in camp and on the march varied, the armies typically established winter quarters in late November or early December, but for the Army of the Potomac in 1861, it was early November. During the first several months of this seasonal hiatus, the Wisconsinites and Hoosiers dined upon beef, salt pork, beans, and soft bread. Hominy, rice, potatoes, and molasses were issued the men for periods but not throughout the entire winter of 1861/1862. "We are living very well," wrote one Wisconsin soldier to his wife. "Have not had hard crackers much of the time...Fried bread is an excellent dish for us. We fry a piece of pork until it is nearly done then put in a piece of bread and fry it until brown."

Rations on the march were often meager, not because the quartermaster stores were low, but rather the movement of large armies of me made the job of getting the supplies to the men. In addition regiments and companies could not rely on the time to set up field kitchens and the men were forced to prepare their own food, or at least prepare it for others in a 3 to 5 man "mess". The company cooks were, often as not, no better prepared for food service than any other individual man in the rank. Overcooking became as much a problem in reducing the healthiness of any given food as its innate lack of nutrients. One other problem with Civil War rations, has it appears to have been in almost all wars is the lack of variety – I had an uncle complain about army rations he had in New Guinea – Kerosene and Chicken feathers most of the time but for a change they'd have Chicken feathers and Kerosene.

Civil War Relative

Editor note: I invite others to submit information about any Civil War relative they may have, to kick off I submit my 2nd Great Grandfather – Andrew Jackson Norton Robinson:

Charlotte and Andrew Robinson

Andrew N. Robinson QM Sgt,

Born in 1824 in Fairhaven VT, his father was a War of 1812 veteran, and grandfather, a veteran of the Revolution. He left home at the age of 16 to apprentice to a carpenter, a trade he followed the rest of his life, in New York state. The census tracks him to Avon Ohio in 1850 and Ordfordville, WI in 1860.

He enlisted in the 7th Wisconsin Infantry in September 14th 1861, at Camp Randall, Madison, WI. He enlisted as a private in Co. "G" of the 7th Wis Inf., but did no duty in that Company, as he was immediately made Quarter Master Sergeant of the Regiment, and acted as such until he was discharged in 1862 for medical reasons. It might be noted that at the time of his enlistment, his brother William was the Lt. Colonel of the Regiment.

The Regiment left Madison on September 21, 1861 and arrived in Washington on October 1st. The Regiment, part of the famous Wisconsin "Iron Brigade" spent that winter in camp. In November the Brigade was part of what was called the "Grand Review." He was mounted and "my horse became frightened by the discharge of artillery and reared and plunged in such a manner that he was uncontrollable, so much as that I left the grounds and went back to my camp at Arlington Heights, a distance of 4 or 5 miles"

He returned to his family after being injured and given a medical discharge. He arrived home in time to pull his youngest son out of a regiment, the son; Hiram was 13 at the time. Several months later he allowed Hiram to join the 33rd Wis. with his older brother Arthur – who was 17. We know from Arthur that Andrew lived in Orfordville, Rock County from about 1854 to at least 1865. In 1870, the census puts him in the larger city of Janesville working in a factory as a joiner. He shifted from the journeyman free lance style of carpentry to factory work since factory work would not put the physical demands on him.

Unlike his more Type A teacher, lawyer, entrepreneur, soldier diplomat brother William; Andrew seemed fine with raising good children and making as good a life for them as possible. So this Pilgrim-Huguenot descendant married and English Rhode Islander and produced a daughter who married a Dutch-Irish descendant who had a daughter who married a 1st generation Dane who had a son who married a woman of German ancestry, which as it turned out, was just fine for me

General John A. Logan's Memorial Day Order

General Order No. 11

Headquarters, Grand Army of the Republic Washington, D.C., May 5, 1868

I. The 30th day of May, 1868, is designated for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village, and hamlet churchyard in the land. In this observance no form or ceremony is prescribed, but posts and comrades will in their own way arrange such fitting services and testimonials of respect as circumstances may permit.

We are organized, comrades, as our regulations tell us, for the purpose, among other things, "of preserving and strengthening those kind and fraternal feelings which have bound together the soldiers, sailors, and marines who united to suppress the late rebellion." What can aid more to assure this result than by cherishing tenderly the memory of our heroic dead, who made their breasts a barricade between our country and its foe? Their soldier lives were the reveille of freedom to a race in chains, and their death a tattoo of rebellious tyranny in arms. We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance. All that the consecrated wealth and taste of the Nation can add to their adornment and security is but a fitting tribute to the memory of her slain defenders. Let no wanton foot tread rudely on such hallowed grounds. Let pleasant paths invite the coming and going of reverent visitors and found mourners. Let no vandalism of avarice or neglect, no ravages of time, testify to the present or to the coming generations that we have forgotten, as a people, the cost of free and undivided republic.

If other eyes grow dull and other hands slack, and other hearts cold in the solemn trust, ours shall keep it well as long as the light and warmth of life remain in us.

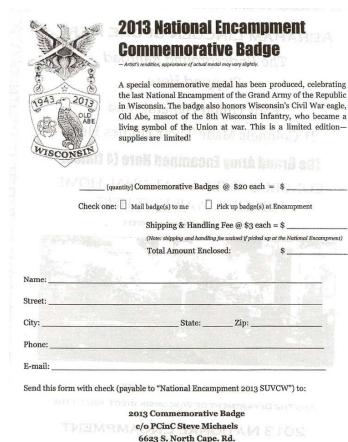

Let us, then, at the time appointed, gather around their sacred remains and garland the passionless mounds above them with choicest flowers of springtime; let us raise above them the dear old flag they saved from dishonor; let us in this solemn presence renew our pledges to aid and assist those whom they have left among us as sacred charges upon the Nation's gratitude,--the soldier's and sailor's widow and orphan.

II. It is the purpose of the Commander-in-Chief to inaugurate this observance with the hope it will be kept up from year to year, while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of his departed comrades. He earnestly desires the public press to call attention to this Order, and lend its friendly aid in bringing it to the notice of comrades in all parts of the country in time for simultaneous compliance therewith.

III. Department commanders will use every effort to make this order effective. By command of:

> JOHN A. LOGAN, Commander-in-Chief.

N. P. CHIPMAN, Adjutant-General.

OSHKOSH and the OLD ABE Camp

In 1885 the Old Abe Camp, located in Oshkosh, was the largest SUV camp in Wisconsin. Old Abe was the famous mascot of the 8th Wisconsin Infantry, popularly known as the Eagle Brigade, a unit heavily involved in the campaigns of the western armies. Old Abe the battle eagle became a real war hero - used for recruiting during the war's later years, attending veterans reunions for years after, and finally becoming a National icon for Wisconsin.
