Commander's Remarks

Camp Commander William W. Parker

Greeting brothers,
2015 is off to start and running. So far this year we had the King Bingo Party back in January and some of us attended the Department of Wisconsin Midwinter meeting. A good time was had by all at both events it was nice meeting with National Sons of Union Veterans Commander Tad Campbell. At the department meeting a new camp was given their charter Col Hans Hegg Camp 15 of Wind lake Wisconsin and it sounds like they are going to host the 2016 state department encampment. On March 29th there is a department new member orientation for any member who wishes to learn more about the organization in Delevan Wisconsin see the department webpage for details. Also I would like to make note that the policy on accepting Junior members has been opened back up.

This year my major goals for the camp are few I would like to see increased participation in events and meetings and I would like to see the camp have a permanent home by next year we will be discussing these at the March meeting on Monday March 16th at 7pm at the Oshkosh fire station. It is also time to get the raffle set up for 2015 since we still have the rifle from last year the winner wanted the cash we have our first place prize set. March and April are typically quite months as far as events go some may be attending the Lincoln tomb ceremony in Springfield Illinois April 11-12 but not that far around the corner we have King open house in May and of course Memorial Day please keep that in mind.

United States Military Medals

Paul Johnson

Patriotic Instructor

Given the recent attention in Wisconsin about the Medal of Honor for Alonzo Cushing and the remark taken from my last article about Will Cushing heroism, "For this feat, Will received the "Thanks of Congress," a recognition that in its time was regarded as more prestigious than the Medal of Honor" One might wonder, exactly what other honors were given in the Civil War..

The Medal of Honor traces its history back to the Revolutionary War, when George Washington established the Badge of Merit. The badge went into disuse after the war. During the Mexican War a Certificate of Merit was created. The Medal of Honor was authorized by Congress and the law signed on Dec. 21, 1861, but only for the Navy. The Army medal was approved and signed into law July 12, 1862.

The only other means of honoring individual acts of bravery was to "brevet" the individual. Brevetted involved allowing a commissioned officer to hold a higher rank, but not actually able to serve at that rank or receive its pay. Brevetted was a practice of the British Army and was adopted as a means of honoring men later in the Civil War. Brevetted can be a confusing procedure and was dropped as a practice after the Spanish American War.

All other honors were created after the Civil War, although the Purple Heart has its roots in the Revolutionary War, it was never awarded as a medal

A word about the difference between a medal and an order, the term order is often used interchangeably with medal, but there is difference, for instance I have an Eagle Scout Medal and a Lincoln Trail Medal from my scouting days. There was awarded to me for something I had accomplished. I have several orders, SUVCW, MOLLUS, SAR and so on. I am allowed to wear these as a symbol of an organization (or order). Sometimes the term medal is used to signify a decoration. Let's look at the present Medals/Decorations awarded by the U.S. Military

Medal of Honor

The Medal of Honor is the United States 'highest military honor, awarded for personal acts of valor above and beyond the call of duty. The medal is awarded by the President of the United States in the name of the U.S. Congress to U.S. military personnel only. There are three versions of the medal, one for the Army, one for the Navy, and one for the Air Force. Personnel of the Marine Corps and Coast Guard receive the Navy version.

The Medal of Honor was created in 1861, early in the American Civil War, to give recognition to men who distinguished themselves "conspicuously by gallantry and intrepidity" in combat with an enemy of the United States. There have been 3,469 Medals of Honor awarded to the nation's soldiers, sailors, airmen, Marines, and coast guardsmen since the decoration's creation, with more than half of them presented for actions during the four years of the Civil War.

Established U.S. Navy: December 21, 1861
 U.S. Army: July 12, 1862
 U.S. Air Force: April 14, 1965

First awarded March 25, 1863: American Civil War, U.S. Army recipient

Distinguished Service Cross

Army medal shown

The Distinguished Service Cross is the second highest military award that can be given to a member of the United States Army (and previously, the United States Army Air Forces), for extreme gallantry and risk of life in actual combat with an armed enemy force. Actions that merit the Distinguished Service Cross must be of such a high degree that they are above those required for all other U.S. combat decorations but do not meet the criteria for the Medal of Honor. The Distinguished Service Cross is equivalent to the Navy Cross (Navy and Marine Corps), the Air Force Cross (Air Force), and the Coast Guard Cross (Coast Guard).

The Distinguished Service Cross was established by President Woodrow Wilson on January 2, 1918. General Pershing, Commander-in-Chief of the Expeditionary Forces in France, had recommended that recognition other than the Medal of Honor be authorized for the Armed Forces of the United States for valorous service rendered in like manner to that awarded by the European Armies. The request for establishment of the medal was forwarded from the Secretary of War to the President in a letter dated December 28, 1917. The Act of Congress establishing this award (193-65th Congress), dated July 9, 1918, is contained in 10 U.S.C. § 3742. The establishment of the Distinguished Service Cross was promulgated in War Department General Order No. 6, dated January 12, 1918.

Silver Star

The Silver Star, officially the Silver Star Medal, is the third-highest military decoration for valor awarded to members of the United States Armed Forces. Any uniformed service member may receive the medal, which is awarded for gallantry in action against an enemy of the United States.

The Silver Star is the successor award to the "Citation Star" ($\frac{3}{16}$ silver star) which was established by an Act of Congress on July 9, 1918. On July 19, 1932, the Secretary of War approved the conversion of the "Citation Star" to the Silver Star Medal. The original "Citation Star" is incorporated into the center of medal.

Authorization for the Silver Star Medal was placed into law by an Act of Congress for the U.S. Navy on August 7, 1942 and an Act of Congress for the U.S. Army on December 15, 1942

Bronze Star

The Bronze Star, officially known as the Bronze Star Medal, is a United States decoration awarded to members of the United States Armed Forces for acts of heroism, meritorious achievement, or meritorious service in a combat zone. When awarded for acts of heroism, the medal is authorized to be worn with the "V" Device or Combat "V" for valor.

The Bronze Star Medal was established by Executive Order 9419, 4 February 1944 (superseded by Executive Order 11046, 24 August 1962, as amended by Executive Order 13286, 28 February 2003). The Bronze Star Medal may be awarded by the Secretary of a military department or the Secretary of Homeland Security with regard to the Coast Guard when not operating as a service in the Navy, or by such military commanders, or other appropriate officers as the Secretary concerned may designate, to any person who, while serving in any capacity in or with the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, or Coast Guard of the United States, after 6 December 1941

Purple Heart

The Purple Heart is a United States military decoration awarded in the name of the President to those wounded or killed, while serving, on or after April 5, 1917, with the U.S. military. With its forerunner, the Badge of Military Merit, which took the form of a heart made of purple cloth, the Purple Heart is the oldest military award still given to U.S. military members; the only earlier award being the obsolete Fidelity Medallion.

The original Purple Heart, designated as the Badge of Military Merit, was established by George Washington—then the commander-in-chief of the Continental Army – by order from his Newburgh, New York headquarters on August 7, 1782. The Badge of Military Merit was only awarded to three Revolutionary War soldiers. From then on as its legend grew; so did its appearance. Although never abolished, the award of the badge was not proposed again officially until after World War I. On October 10, 1927, Army Chief of Staff General Charles Pelot Summerall directed that a draft bill be sent to Congress "to revive the Badge of Military Merit". The bill was withdrawn and action on the case ceased January 3, 1928, but the office of the Adjutant General was instructed to file all materials collected for possible future use. A number of private interests sought to have the medal re-instituted in the Army; this included the board of directors of the Fort Ticonderoga Museum in Ticonderoga, New York.

Any tally of Purple Hearts is an estimate. Awards are often given during conflict; records aren't always exact" (page 33). The estimates are as follows:

- World War I: 320,518
- World War II: 1,076,245
- Korean War: 118,650
- Vietnam War: 351,794
- Persian Gulf War: 607
- Afghanistan War: 7,027 (as of 5 June 2010)
- Iraq War: 35,321 (as of 5 June 2010)

There were 500,000 Purple Hearts created in anticipation of the invasion of Japan. Since the invasion never took place, the medals were put into storage. Due to a change in the dispersal of the actual metals the number of remaining medals is an estimate. However in the late '70's new orders were place to replenish the WWII stock. The invasion medals ended up being awarding through the end of Vietnam. *Personal note my brother was awarded the Purple Heart as a KIA in Vietnam, my father who was drafted in 1945 and trained as a replacement in the invasion of Japan mused that "Charley may have gotten the medal meant for me."

Legion of Merit

The Legion of Merit (LOM) is a military award of the United States Armed Forces that is given for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services and achievements. The decoration is issued to members of the seven uniformed services of the United States as well as to military and political figures of foreign governments.

The Legion of Merit (Commander degree) is one of only two United States military decorations to be issued as a neck order (the other being the Medal of Honor) and the only United States decoration which may be issued in award degrees (much like an order of chivalry or certain Orders of Merit).

The Legion of Merit is seventh in the order of precedence of U.S. Military awards and is worn after the Defense Superior Service Medal and before the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The Legion of Merit is conferred on officers and enlisted men of the Armed Forces of the United States and on nationals of other countries who shall have distinguished themselves by exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services since September 8, 1939, the date of the President's proclamation of the state of emergency that led to World War II. The Legion of Merit may be awarded for combat or noncombat services.

There are, of course many other decorations and awards given to men and women of the armed forces, as well as to civilians in the government. The above is a list of the decorations that are associated with combat

A Civil War Surgeon

LuAnn Williams, Patriotic Instructor

When you think about a surgeon what adjectives come to mind? Strong, tireless, caring, healer, courageous, gentle. Now think of a Civil War surgeon and what words come to mind? Fast, ruthless, amputation, butcher, sawbones? Now think of a female surgeon during the Civil War, what comes to mind? Non-existent? Not so fast, there were a couple of women that acted as surgeons during the Civil War. One that was “officially” a surgeon, was Mary Edwards Walker. Mary was born in Oswego, New York on November 26, 1832. Mary was very much a non-conformist, probably due to her forward thinking parents. After graduating from the Syracuse Medical School, which by the way was one of the few schools that admitted women, she practiced briefly in Ohio and then went back to New York. One of Mary’s passions was for dress reform. I guess I never really gave it much thought, but wearing bloomers back then was a shocking thing to do. Mary usually wore trousers under a long sleeved high necked loose dress that fell below her knees, she thought that the clothing of the day was constraining, unhealthy and unhygienic. She was arrested several times for wearing what most perceived as men’s clothing.

When the Civil War broke out Mary went to Washington to offer her services as a physician. She was promptly refused, not only because she was female, but shockingly enough she wore bloomers. Even though she had a medical degree, her acceptance into the medical community was next to impossible. Still wanting to help in some way, she worked as a nurse in Washington, pro bono and with no title. Seeing the destitution of the soldier’s wives and mothers in Washington she helped found the Women’s Relief Association.

In September of 1864, Mary was finally awarded a contract as Acting Assistant Surgeon with the Ohio 52 Infantry. She treated soldiers at Bull Run, Fredericksburg, and in Chattanooga after the Battles of Chickamauga and Atlanta. Mary was always outspoken about her colleague’s decisions regarding amputation. She often would challenge the surgeon’s decision to amputate a limb. Because of that she was branded as cantankerous, abrasive, stubborn and harassing. Some have said that she was also a Union spy during the war. She was captured by the Confederates in 1864 and spent 4 months as a prisoner in Castle Thunder in Richmond Virginia. While at the prison she was often ridiculed by the New York Tribune. She was held until released in a prisoner exchange. Mary was quite proud of the fact that she was released in exchange for a Confederate surgeon. In 1865 she was a surgeon of the Women’s Prison Hospital in Louisville KY. Mary was paid $766.16 for her service in the war and also received a pension. Shortly after that Mary was recommended for the Medal of Honor by Generals William Tecumseh Sherman and George Henry Thomas. She was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for Meritorious Service, the first ever awarded to a woman, for her service in the Civil War. She was extremely proud of that accomplishment and wore the medal often.

Mary was elected President of the National Dress Reform Association in 1866. In 1867 her activities became more political in nature. She promoted women’s causes such as suffrage, she had progressive opinions regarding marriage and divorce, and was an opponent of alcohol and tobacco.

Dr. Walker also published two books, “Hit” in 1871 and “The Science of Immortality” in 1878.

In 1917 her Medal of Honor was revoked, along with hundreds of others including Buffalo Bill Cody, because her acts of bravery did not occur in the context of combat. The recipients were asked to return the medals. Mary flatly refused and even continued to wear it until her death on February 21, 1919. Her Grandniece spearheaded an effort to get her medal reinstated after her death. In 1974 a letter from the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee read “It’s clear your Great-grandaunt was not only courageous during the term she served as a contract doctor in the Union Army, but also as an outspoken proponent of feminine rights. Both as a doctor and feminist, she was very much ahead of her time. Her Medal of Honor was restored to her posthumously in June of 1977 by Jimmy Carter citing her distinguished gallantry, self-sacrifice, patriotism, dedication and unflinching loyalty to her country.

Walker was inducted into the National Women’s Hall of Fame in 2000. A WWII ship was named in her honor, the US Postal Service honored the anniversary of her birth by issuing a 20 cent stamp, an Army Reserve Center in Grand Rapids is named after her and she also has several clinics named after her.

A trailblazer for sure!

OSHKOSH and the OLD ABE Camp

In 1885 the Old Abe Camp, located in Oshkosh, was the largest SUV camp in Wisconsin. Old Abe was the famous mascot of the 8th Wisconsin Infantry, popularly known as the Eagle Brigade, a unit heavily involved in the campaigns of the western armies. Old Abe the battle eagle became a real war hero - used for recruiting during the war's later years, attending veterans reunions for years after, and finally becoming a National icon for Wisconsin.
